

Investing for Impact at Every Age, Stage and Season of Life

The Go Red Fund invests in companies that are translating evidence-based science and clinical expertise into products and services that drive better health access and outcomes for women.

To spark real-world change, the Go Red Fund supports companies that advance women's health. And, with a $75 million capital target, ours will be one of the world's largest dedicated impact funds for women.

INVESTMENT FOCUS

scientifically-sound companies that drive leads and coordinates the venture capital programs of the American Heart Association, which include the Go Red for Women Venture Fund, Cardeation Capital, the Social Impact Funds (including the Bernard J. Tyson Impact Fund) and its venture studio, Studio Red.

We amplify the Association's mission by investing in and funding organizations that have developed commercially actionable, sustainable and equitable products and services from evidence-based science, research and clinical expertise. By translating science and research into action, we're driving better outcomes for people and the health care system.